Viruses, Trojans and Worms may appear in e-mails, Internet websites, and attachments. Viruses may collect credit card information, prevent programs and the computer from working, and further replicate by being e-mailed to everybody in your address book.

Spyware secretly gathers user information through the Internet, usually for advertising purposes. Spyware can range from dormant to actively slowing down your computer or preventing Internet access. Not only is spyware annoying, but it could prevent your computer from running and possibly infecting others via e-mail and IM's. Our technical experts will remove your spyware quickly and ensure you are protected against future spyware threats.

Popups are usually sent from advertisers or may be found on websites that offer free downloads. In effect, popups can be irritating and reduce your computer's Internet or overall performance.

Computer Spam

Spam is unsolicited e-mail. Usually, it's irrelevant and inappropriate forms of advertisement. Spam could contain viruses or request credit card information by disguising itself as one of your institutions. This electronic spam typically accounts for at least 30% of users' inboxes. So, it is necessary to manually or automatically remove spam in the appropriate manner to become more productive again.
